School District of Palm Beach County, Human Resources Division
The School District of Palm Beach County Human Resources Division and its 101 employees provide services through its departments, including Employee and Labor Relations, Professional Development, Recruitment and Retention/Non-Instructional and Administrative Staffing, Professional Growth, and Compensation and Employee Information Services for full time, part time, and former employees.

The School District of Palm Beach County is the tenth largest in the nation, the fifth largest in the state of Florida, and the largest employer in Palm Beach County. The District serves more than 22,800 school district employees, including more than 13,480 teachers.

The HR Division has implemented an industry-leading service delivery model that focuses on continuous improvement and the utilization of its HR Partners as human capital diagnosticians and brokers of HR services. This model is coupled with processing centers and an award-winning HR Customer Care Center (CCC) available for all employee inquiries.

The Division has pursued a course of performance excellence in its processes that has benefited not only its metric driven results, but also driven a sustainable culture of performance. Multiple quality improvement tools and techniques are employed in the Division’s operations including scorecards, real-time dashboards, process control charts, integration with feedback and review models, and others that all together form a systemic approach to performance excellence.

Customer focused services provided by the Division show excellent results and beneficial trends on customer satisfaction key indicators that exceed national customer service benchmark ratings across many of their core functions. These include service ratings from customers to their CCC, job processing turnaround times, overall customer rating of HR from schools, and performance on scorecard metrics.

The Division launched a district-wide lean six sigma training program leading to improvement projects across the organization with a year-over-year time savings equivalent increase. Process improvement methodologies resulted in a 38% reduction in the teacher hiring process time.

“Earning the prestigious Florida Governor’s Sterling Award is an honor and a testament that organizational visions can be achieved. Leading with a high performing team and a continuous improvement framework, our organization moved from transactional to transformational to improve outcomes of students and staff,” stated Chief of HR Dr. Gonzalo La Cava.

University of Miami – Life Alliance Organ Recovery Agency (LAORA)

_Improve Key Work Processes – LAORA Goes Green_

The organization developed its first Six Sigma green belt project with the objective of reducing the annual number of miles driven in, to, and from Palm Beach, Broward, and Miami-Dade Counties. The goal was to reduce from an average of 1,057 miles per month per team member to 757 miles per month per team member by December 31, 2020. As a result of the effort, decreases in mileage were seen across the board, averaging 260 miles per person. Based on the initial case study and projections, LAORA could save more than $60,000 per year. The direct result for the LAORA staff is improved work-life balance, as well as increased engagement. In addition, the added efficiencies have resulted in improved relationships between LAORA and its stakeholders. This has come in the form of faster response time to the hospitals and earlier engagement with the donor families to better meet their needs.
